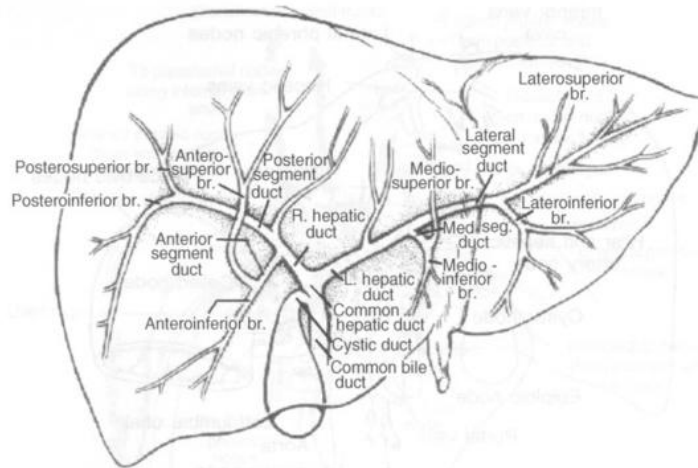

Fig. 13. Intrahepatic distribution of the bile ducts. Br, branch. (From Colborn GL, Skandalakis LJ, Gray SW, et al. Surgical anatomy of the liver and associated extrahepatic structures. Part 3 – surgical anatomy of the liver. Contemp Surg 1987;31:25; with permission.)

Caudate lobe drainage

The biliary drainage of the caudate lobe (segment I) enters both the right and the left hepatic duct systems in 80% of individuals [50]. In 15% of cases
